Wants Congressmen On Job

Editor, The Pantagraph:

I don't know how others feel, but I for one would like to see a senator or congressman that has been sent to Washington do the job he was elected and sent there to do. That is to legislate. But I guess that is too much to expect.

I'm tired of having a senator take over the job of FBI, the CIA or become an ambassador at large, etc. To top it all they travel all over the country making speeches for re-election or condemning the administration regardless of what political party is in. Their job is in Washington, D.C., not world wide.

If they had to punch a time clock and be docked a day's pay for each day they missed a session of Congress they would stay on the job.
